CAN'T CAN

If you want to go smokefree the NHS offers plenty of support – and it works.

We'll get you working with a trained adviser, either in a group or one-to-one. One of the things you can do is use a carbon monoxide monitor, to check how addicted you are and measure the fall in carbon monoxide in your body.

We'll also give advice about Nicotine Replacement Therapy (NRT), and which product or combination of products could work for you. You're up to four times more likely to be successful if you go to your local NHS Stop Smoking Service and use NRT, than if you try to go smokefree using willpower alone.

SHARE YOUR EXPERIENCES

Most groups meet for an hour or two a week for six or seven weeks. You'll usually spend the first two sessions planning and preparing to stop, then go smokefree in the third week. Many people find that sharing the experience with others is helpful in itself.

TALK FACE-TO-FACE

If you would prefer one-to-one support, you can get it in most areas.

PROGRAMME MAKES

ARE NOT ALONE.

STRUGGLE COPE

The initial few days without any nicotine are often the hardest part of going smokefree, as this is when you are fighting the physical addiction. Nicotine replacement products can help you get past this. You use them in the early stages. After the nicotine cravings pass, you'll find it much easier to overcome the mental side of the habit.

You can get lots of different types of Nicotine Replacement Therapy (NRT) – and they work. NRT doubles your chances of successfully going smokefree by helping you manage your withdrawal symptoms. Because it goes into your body differently to nicotine from cigarettes, it's much less addictive. NRT does not contain tar, poisons or carbon monoxide the way cigarettes do, so it doesn't cause cancer.

You can get a prescription for NRT, or buy it over the counter, and follow the instructions on the packet. It's suitable for most adults, but if you have a heart or circulatory condition, or are on regular medication, you should get the OK from your doctor. Likewise if you are pregnant, you should ask your doctor or midwife before using NRT.

NICOTINE GUM

Nicotine is absorbed through the lining of your mouth when you chew the gum.

NICOTINE PATCHES

Nicotine patches work well for most smokers, and can be worn around the clock (24 hour patches) or just during the day (16 hour patches).

MICROTABS

These are small tablets containing nicotine that dissolve under your tongue.

LOZENGES

Lozenges are sucked slowly to release the nicotine and take about 20-30 minutes to dissolve.

NICOTINE NASAL SPRAY

The spray delivers a swift and effective dose of nicotine through the lining of your nose.

INHALATORS

Much like a plastic cigarette, the inhalator releases nicotine vapour which gets absorbed through your mouth and throat. If you miss the hand to mouth aspect of smoking these may suit you.

ZYBAN (BUPROPION HYDROCHLORIDE)

As well as NRT, there are other products that do not contain nicotine that can help you go smokefree, such as Zyban. You take Zyban tablets for two months and should be ready to stop smoking during the second week. It's available only from your doctor on prescription.

MAKE EXCUSES TAKE ACTION

Whatever methods you use to go smokefree, you'll find that keeping a record of your progress can play an important part in helping you. That's why we've designed a SMOKEFREE Planner for you to complete. It's filled with useful self-help exercises and takes you all the way from the first to the last step of the smokefree journey.

STEP 1: THINK

The first thing you need to do to become smokefree is to think seriously about stopping smoking. Everything else follows from that. There are four steps people tend to go through on their way to going smokefree for good. Step one is the simplest.

Use this SMOKEFREE Planner to keep track of your progress. It's a good idea to write in biro as other pens could smudge.

ARE YOU READY?

Most people who smoke have thought about going smokefree. But you have to think about it seriously to begin to rid yourself of the addiction.

Read through the following section and fill it in as you go along, and suddenly you'll be a lot clearer about your reasons for going smokefree.

WHAT DO YOU STAND TO GAIN?

- MORE MONEY TO SPEND ON YOURSELF AND YOUR FAMILY
- AN IMPROVED SENSE OF SMELL
- TASTIER FOOD
- BETTER HEALTH IN THE FUTURE
- FREEDOM FROM THE RESTRICTIONS SMOKING CAN PUT ON YOU
- MORE TIME TO SPEND WITH YOUR KIDS
- A FRESHER HOME AND BETTER BREATH
- CLEANER LUNGS
- REDUCED STRESS AND ANXIETY LEVELS

HOW MUCH DOES SMOKING COST YOU?

Do this rough calculation – you may find smoking costs you more than you think.

What you spend on smoking a week: £ ____ a week

Multiply by 52 to give you the cost for a year: £ ____ a year

SO THINK AHEAD, IF YOU DON'T GO SMOKEFREE NOW...

In another three years you would spend: £ ____

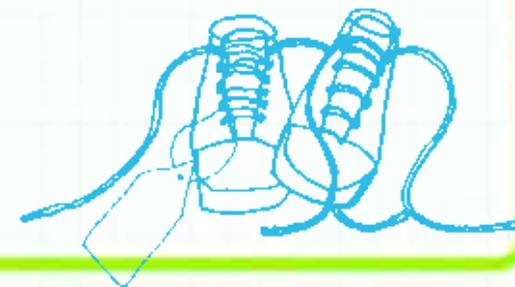

In five years: £ ____

In ten years: £ ____

List your top five reasons for going smokefree here.

Spend the money you save on other things. New shoes. A kitchen. Maybe a weekend break...

WHY DID YOU START SMOKING?

Now you're planning to stop, it's worth thinking about what got you started. Do any of these sound familiar?

- To look older
- To be cool
- Copying friends or family
- To feel grown up
- To be tough
- To be accepted
- Curiosity
- Just felt like it

Anything else?

Which of these still apply?

Whatever your reasons for starting smoking, are they good reasons to keep doing it?

WHAT'S KEEPING YOU SMOKING?

Smoking is usually a habit. There are probably certain times in the day that you normally light up – little 'triggers' if you like. It's good to know what these are and have a way of dealing with them.

WHEN ARE YOU MOST LIKELY TO WANT A CIGARETTE?

- Waking up
- Talking on the phone
- Having a drink
- Watching TV
- At social events
- After a meal
- With friends or family
- Reading the paper

REASONS TO GO SMOKEFREE

Do the reasons to stop seem stronger? If they do, read on. If they don't, you're not ready to go smokefree yet.

STEP 2: PREPARE

The second stage in going smokefree is all about preparation. You've thought long and hard and now it's time to start planning for the big event.

KNOW WHY YOU SMOKE

To understand when you smoke and what's triggering it, fill in this planner over a day or two.

MANAGING YOUR TRIGGERS

Here are some ways of coping with the difficult moments:

- Stay busy
- Think about something else
- Take a few slow, deep breaths
- Go for a stroll, or just into another room
- Drink a glass of water
- Talk to a friend about it
- Look back at your list of reasons for stopping
- Try using some NRT products or Zyban

You've probably got some ideas of your own as well – write them here.

STEP 4: STAY

Now you've reached the critical step in the whole process of stopping smoking – and that's staying smokefree for good. We appreciate you need all the help you can get and that's why in this section you'll find tips and advice to help you stay one step ahead of the cravings.

COPING WITH WITHDRAWAL SYMPTOMS

Lots of people start smoking again because they feel they can't cope with the withdrawal symptoms. The first few days may not be much fun, but the symptoms are a sign that your body is starting to recover.

Nicotine replacement products will help you to reduce the severity of your withdrawal symptoms and make going smokefree more manageable.

SYMPTOMS

WHAT'S HAPPENING

HOW TO COPE

Intense desire to smoke

Your brain is missing the nicotine fix

Cravings are worst for the first few days and will lessen over a few weeks. Look at ways to cope on page 31

Coughing, dry mouth

Your lungs are clearing of tar

Symptoms will improve quite quickly. Warm drinks can help

Hunger

Your metabolism is changing, and food tastes better once you've stopped smoking

Eat fruit and vegetables, chew gum and drink lots of water

Constipation or diarrhoea

It's all part of your body returning to normal and it will settle down

As above – fruit, vegetables and plenty of water

Trouble sleeping

This can be due to nicotine leaving your body

This shouldn't last more than two or three weeks. Cut down on coffee and tea, and try to get more fresh air and exercise

Dizziness

More oxygen is getting to your brain instead of carbon monoxide

It should go away after a few days

Mood swings, poor concentration, irritability

These are signs of nicotine withdrawal and will pass

Warn family and friends and ask for their support. Look at ways to cope on page 38

HANDLING THE STRESS

It can take a while to get used to being smokefree and for new habits to start feeling natural. If you've been using smoking as a way to deal with stress, now's the time to find other ways like these:

- Be honest with yourself about what's really upsetting you
- Try different ways of doing things
- Talk problems over with someone you trust
- Prioritise tasks and make realistic plans for getting them done
- Do one thing just for you every day
- Take time out to relax and try to get enough sleep
- Remember, as a non-smoker, you'll be less stressed and find it easier to cope

COPING WITH DIFFICULT SITUATIONS

Glance back at the list of things that are keeping you smoking on page 29. It helps to avoid these if you can. But just taking that step back and being aware of them helps you cope.

And if you've tried to go smokefree before, learn from your mistakes and try something new this time.

IF I AM TEMPTED TO START SMOKING AGAIN I WILL:

Handwritten notes on a lined page, including the words "I will" and "I can".

STEP BACK START AGAIN

Don't worry if you take a step back and start smoking again. It often takes people four or five attempts to stop for good. Next time you try, you can draw on the lessons you learnt this time round to help you go smokefree.

WHY PEOPLE START SMOKING AGAIN

There are lots of reasons people give up on going smokefree, but some of the most common are that they:

- Thought they could have 'just one'
- Didn't prepare well or think about their smoking triggers
- Didn't work out other ways of dealing with stress
- Put on weight
- Thought of themselves as ex-smokers not non-smokers

EMERGENCY ADVICE

If you've just had a cigarette:

- Revisit your decision to stop
- Bin any cigarettes you've got
- Get out of the situation that made you start – go outside, or to a different room
- Call a friend or the NHS Smoking Helpline on 0800 169 0 169
- Don't let it undo all your hard work

REMEMBER, YOU HAVEN'T FAILED
-YOU CAN STILL SUCCEED.
